FedEx delivery times and store hours

How late does FedEx deliver?

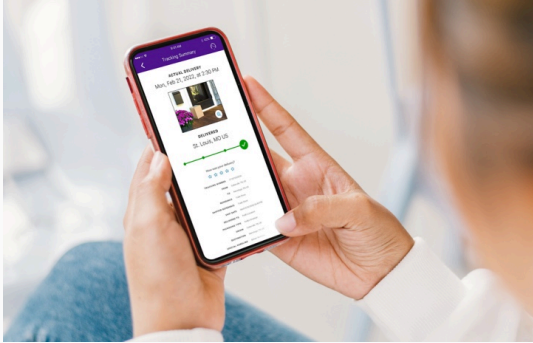

Typical FedEx delivery hours are 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday–Friday and on Saturday and Sunday for residential deliveries except for FedEx expedited shipments. FedEx expedited delivery times vary by service. If you got a message that says we'll deliver your package by end of day, your package should arrive before 8 p.m. when FedEx usually stops delivering.

To get an estimated delivery time for your package, you can enter your tracking number (or other identifying reference number) into the tracking tool. You'll see your scheduled delivery date and a 4 hour estimated delivery window, if available.

What are FedEx store hours?

FedEx operating hours vary by location. Find stores near you by entering your location. Then you can see operating hours and filter by location type or service, including package pickup and drop off, packing, shipping, printing, and more.

How to manage your deliveries

Do any of these statements sound like you? If so, find out what to do to take control of your shipments, handle door tags, start returns, and more.

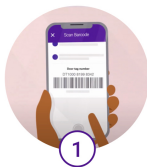

“I won't be home to receive my FedEx package.”

Is your package already on its way? Request to redirect it to one of our thousands of convenient pickup locations. All you need is the tracking number to get started. Another option: Enroll in FedEx Delivery Manager. You can ask your driver to leave your package in a specific location. Or place a vacation hold for up to 14 days and pick up packages once you're back.

“I missed a FedEx delivery and got a door tag.”

We do everything we can to make sure you get your delivery at the address specified. But sometimes it's not possible or prudent for us to leave packages. For example, if your package requires a signature but you're not home. Or if the driver can't find a safe place to leave your shipment. In those situations, we might leave a door tag. Here's how to handle that.

Use the tracking or door tag number to track your package and find out where to pick it up.

Bring the door tag or tracking number and a government-issued photo ID to your pickup location.

Give both to a team member and sign for your package.

If the address on your ID doesn't match the address on the label, be sure to bring other documentation with a matching address, like a utility bill, insurance card, property statement, or credit card statement.

You may have an option to authorize a next-business-day redelivery by completing and signing the form on the back of your door tag and leaving it on your door.

“My package is being held at a FedEx location. How long will they hold it?”

We'll hold your package for up to 7 days before returning it to the shipper.

“I need to return a FedEx package.”

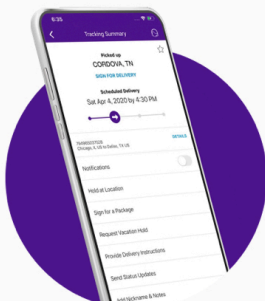

You can create a return shipping label online or visit a participating FedEx location to start the returns process. If you already have a return shipping label and a packed box, you're ready to drop it off at one of thousands of convenient locations around the country, including FedEx Office, Walgreens, and select Dollar General stores.

“Why don't I see a delivery date scheduled?”

We strive to provide the best delivery experience for every shipment. In order to ensure accurate and reliable information, a delivery date is not added until FedEx has taken possession of the package.

Better tracking, security, and control

Text "follow" and your door tag number to 48773.

Please call customer support, say "track my package," and follow the prompts.

What does my tracking status mean?

Here's a guide to understanding the status of your FedEx package.

Package status	Meaning
----------------	---------

At drop off point	Your shipment has been dropped off at a FedEx-approved location.
At pickup	A FedEx driver is at the pickup location and ready to receive the shipment.
Delivered	Your package has been delivered.
Delivery updated	Due to a request or delay, we've updated the shipment's estimated delivery date.
Exception	Your package is delayed due to unavoidable circumstances such as extreme weather or customs delays.
Label created	The shipping label has been created for your package.
Label expired	The shipping label has expired and will no longer work.
Label expiring	The shipping label will expire soon.
On the way	Your package is on its way to the destination. It could be in transit or at a FedEx facility.
Out for delivery	Your package was scanned by a package handler and loaded onto a delivery vehicle. See the estimated delivery window.
Ready for pickup	Your package was redirected to a nearby location because you placed a hold-at-location request. Your package is now ready to be picked up.
Returning to FedEx facility	Due to an issue during delivery, the package is on its way back to a FedEx facility. The shipper or recipient approved this action.

Returning to shipper	The shipper has recalled the package, or FedEx has reached the maximum number of delivery attempts. The package is on its way back to the shipper.
Shipment cancelled	This shipment has been cancelled and will no longer show tracking information.
We have your package	The package has entered the FedEx network. We're processing the shipment.
We tried to deliver	FedEx was unable to complete the delivery, resulting in a failed delivery attempt.

After you log in, you can use these direction tags to filter shipments.

Direction tag	Meaning
Inbound	The number of packages on their way to you.
Outbound	The number of packages you're sending out.
Third party	The number of packages you're paying to ship between addresses that aren't listed on your account.
Unknown	The shipment was entered manually without an assigned direction. The direction of the shipment is unknown.

Why isn't my package moving?

You'll see shipment updates at various points between pickup and delivery. The frequency of scans varies. And it's not unusual for a shipment to go more than 24 hours without an update, especially during long transit. Once you have an estimated delivery time window, you can use map view if your shipment is eligible. You'll get a dynamic view of your package's movements, so you can plan to be home.
