Allow someone else to pick up a package for you.

After redirecting a package to a FedEx location, you can choose to show a QR code instead of using a government-issued ID when picking up your package. This means you can send that QR code to someone else who can pick up your package for you, making pickup faster and more convenient. (Not available for packages that require an adult signature.)

Sign for a package—even if you won't be home to receive it.

Use your phone or computer to virtually sign for a package in advance, authorizing the driver to leave the shipment. (Not available for packages that require an adult or direct physical signature.) Read more about FedEx signature requirements.

Save package delivery instructions for your driver.

Specify where you want packages delivered (at a side door, under an awning, or to your apartment office, for example). Or ask the driver not to ring your doorbell or knock on your door. Input instructions once, and they will apply for all future deliveries to your address. Find out how specifying preferences in FedEx Delivery Manager can help reduce package theft.

Be sure about the driver who's at your door.

You'll see your driver's name and photo when you track an eligible package.

Place a vacation hold on packages.

Need to have packages held for a while? We can hold all your FedEx deliveries for up to two weeks for no extra charge. Then we'll resume delivery to your address when you're ready. Get more details about vacation holds.
